Dear Steven,

The Kansas Library Association Library Instruction Round Table (K-LIRT) thanks you for your exhibit at the Makers Fair held at the 2009 Kansas Library Association/Mountain Plains Library Association Conference. Your exhibit "Teach Your Browser New Tricks: Web-based Instruction Tools at K-State" was very interesting and generated many new ideas. Additionally, thank you for your generosity in offering to share code for a number of projects with other libraries. The Makers Fair proved to be a valuable forum for discussion about emerging library instruction trends and projects.

K-LIRT invites you to join our future activities such as the upcoming Summer Institute. For more information about the Summer Institute and upcoming events visit the K-LIRT website at <http://tiny.cc/pyhsn>.

Thanks again for your presentation at the recent Makers Fair. It was a valuable opportunity for the instruction community to share new ideas.

Thanks,

Kristin Whitehair
